Adopt a Wolf

Nuka

Tundra

Tala

The Trust has four groups of wolves:

- Torak (above), a majestic half-European, half-North American male wolf lives with energetic Mosi, sister of Mai
- Motomo (below), a fine-looking un-socialised male lives with calm Mai. They are the parents of:
- Nuka (m), Tala (f) and Tundra (f) – The Beenham Pack, left – full of mischief and character, born 3rd May 2011 at the Trust
- Sikko (f), Pukak (m) and Massak (m) – pictured overleaf – three charismatic Arctic wolves who arrived at the Trust in June 2011

Each has their own character and they love to show off to visitors who come to the Trust. To help you choose a wolf, go to the adoption page at www.ukwolf.org.

All funds in the adopt-a-wolf programme go towards the upkeep of the adopted wolves at the Trust and their cousins in the wild.

THE UK WOLF CONSERVATION TRUST

The UK Wolf Conservation Trust works for the protection and conservation of wild wolves and their habitats. This is achieved through education, awareness and fundraising for large carnivore projects in Europe and around the world. Since 1995 the Trust has donated over £250,000 to support these projects.

Ambassador Wolves

The work could not be achieved without the help of our ambassador wolves. Getting close to a wolf changes preconceptions, and you can't get much closer than when you visit the Trust.

Get Involved

Anyone can support the work we do by becoming a member, adopting a wolf, attending our 'Visit Wednesdays', photography days, children's events and special one-off events, and by buying merchandise.

Children are encouraged to get involved with wildlife conservation from as young as six years old. School visits to the Trust are popular, as well as Easter, Halloween and Christmas events, special walks and creative writing events with children's authors, including one of our patrons, Michelle Paver.

Education is key, and the Trust also helps to educate and train conservation and animal behaviour students through its work experience programme and college visits.

Wolf Print, our flagship magazine, is up-to-date and informative, with wolf experts from around the world contributing alongside Trust news.

The UK Wolf Conservation Trust, Butlers Farm, Beenham, Reading, Berkshire, RG7 5NT. Tel: 0118 971 3330.

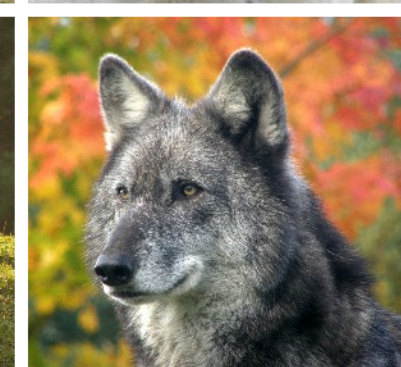

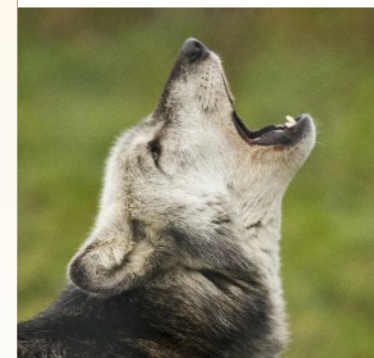

The UK Wolf Conservation Trust is a non-profit-making organisation and could not survive without the generosity of the public in supporting our aims of donating to wild wolf projects.

THE ARCTIC WOLVES

These beautiful Arctic wolves were born in captivity at Parc Safari, near Quebec in Canada, during a fierce snowstorm. They would not have survived but for the quick intervention and expertise of the park staff who hand-raised them.

Sikko

Massak

They had no space to keep them so we were very happy to give them a permanent home.

They arrived at the Trust in June 2011 and quickly settled into their large enclosure. They were the first Arctic wolves to live in the UK and their calm affectionate temperaments and soft thick white fur make them very popular with visitors. They have a low, melodic howl and are very photogenic.

We have named each of the cubs from the Labradoran Inuit language: Sikko (female, pronounced 'see-ko') meaning ice, Pukak (male) meaning fine snow and Massak (male) meaning soft snow.
